

I CLAIM:

1. A foldable luggage provided with a carriage comprising a rectangular trunk that can be folded and collapsed, wherein:
an opening being provided on the front of the trunk; the inner edge of 5 the opening being sewn and reinforced with a steel wire; the opening being patched up with a nylon fabric sewn with a front panel to define an internal bag; the carriage including a retractable pull rod set and a handle being provided at the top of the other side of the trunk; a honeycomb board being each inserted to the top and the bottom of 10 the trunk; multiple casters being provided to the bottom of the trunk; both shorter sides of the trunk being each hollowed with the space patched up with a nylon fabric of same size to that of the hollowed space; each side panel being sewn to its peripheral a zip, reinforced with a steel wire and inserted with a long honeycomb board to give 15 stiffness to the side panel; both of the upper and the lower ends of the side panel being respectively locked with an protruding rib; and the trunk being held firm and solid by both ribs holding against to both short honeycomb boards respectively inserted to the top and the bottom of the trunk.